Coleman, the of ficer says, was slightly intoxicated, and he advised him togo home. Coleman asked Sheehan if he were a policeman. Sheehan, who is a much smaller man than Coleman, replied that he was, and the latter exclaimed. "I'll be d-d if you can arrest me without being in uniform. A LIFE AND DEATH STRUGGLE.

The officer then seized Coleman and they had a desperate fight. A crowd of colored men assembled, and, as Mr. Sheehan says, aided Coleman in every way. During the fight the prisoner succeeded in getting the officer's pistol, but it was taken from him by James Howard, a young white man, who was called upon by the The competitive examination of applicants for appointment as foremen at the Washington navy yard will be completed next Monday. Mr. Hendricks and the President. THERE ARE DIFFERENCES OF OPINION, BUT NOT SUCH AS THREATEN THE HARMONY OF

THE PARTY. At Waukesha, Wis., on Saturday a correspondent of the New York Sun had an interview with Vice President Hendricks regarding a recent Washington dispatch to the Philadelphia Times, which imputed to him sentiments that threatened the unity of the democratic party, and would precipitate a conflict between the President and a considerable portion of his party in Congress. Mr. Hendricks said: "The charge that I am not on terms of personal friendship with the President is pure fiction. As to our political relations, there may be some differences, but only such as may exist between equally sincere men striving for the same end. As to the charge that I am openly or secretly conpassed through the body.

The young man's father, who was an assistant paymaster in the navy during the war and now lives in Philadelphia, upon learning of his son's death and the apparent immunity of his murderer, set on foot an investigation of the matter, and the reply of Consul General Strother to the instructions of the State department rethe instructions of the state department respecting the murder has just been received. The details of the affair are given as follows:

On Saturday night, May 30, Hardy, in company with a young Cuban, attended a public ball at the Tivoli del Frenocalh, a pleasure garden in the suburb of the city. Colonel Enrique Omana was likewise present, and entertained himself by dancing and paying gallant attention to a woman known as "Pancha La Ronco," with whom Hardy was acquainted. About daylight on Sunday morning, May 31, Colonel Omana was taking coffee with this woman in one of the summer houses in the garden, while Hardy and his companion stood near by observing them. Colonel Omana's attention had been called to the surveillance several times in the night, and he was probably irritated by it, the night, and he was probably irritated by it, so that when Hardy made some sign to the woman, he rushed hastily out of the summer house and made a violent attack on his visitor. Hardy closed with him and a scuffle ensued and soon blows were passed with some apparent advantage to the American. Omana then drew a pistol and thrusting the muzzle against Hardy's chin fired upward, killing his antagonist instantly. Omana was at once arrested and taken before the city authorities, but being a member of the federal congress, the court disclaimed jurisdiction in the case, and the prisoner was liberated to await the action of his peers at the assembly of congress in September. After the inquest the body of Hardy was delivered to his triends and was buried in the National company. tional cemetery at Truxpanna, near the city, under the charge of the United States consul

MR. GEO. W. CHILDS SAYS ONE WAS MADE AT LONG BRANCH A YEAR AGO-MRS. GRANT'S There is said to be some uneasiness amone Branch regarding the disposition of the general's will, which, it is known, he made at Long Branch about a year ago. The subscribing witnesses to it were Geo. W. Childs and the Rev. Dr. Morton, rector of St. James' Protestant Episcopal church, of Philadelphia, who at the time was Mr. Childs' guest. Mr. Childs said yesterday: "Yes; it's a mistake to say that Gen. Grant left no will. His cottage adjoined mine. One day last August he came over with a paper in his hand that, he said, was his will, and asked Dr. Morton and myself to witness it. We affixed our signatures to the document, and the general took it away. I do not know what he did with it. I am anxious to see it produced, so that I may prove my signature. The will was drawn up by Mr. Purrington, a New York lawyer. The general's regular legal advicer lawyer. The general's regular legal adviser was Clarence Seward." Lawyer Purrington was a friend of "Buck" Grant, the general's son, and was associated with the Grant & Ward Mrs. Grant will remain at Mt. McGregor until October 1st. She has not decided what she will do after that, further than that she will rent or dispose of the house in 66th street, New York, and take a smaller dwelling. The house is in her name and is worth about $30,000 above the mortgage upon it. The Grant cottage at Long Branch belongs to her entirely, and she also owns a house in Washington. Mr. Childs thinks the amount of prospective profits from the general's book will not be so large as commonly stated, but will probably reach $200,000. the general's book will not be so large as commonly stated, but will probably reach $200,000. Mr. Childs understands that the executors of the Morgan estate have decided to pay over to Gen. Grant's estate the principal of the trust fund raised for the general. The Morgan estate guaranteed the interest of the Wabash bonds, in which the fund was invested, for five years. There was a question as to whether it did not guarantee the principal also. The executors, it is said, have resolved the doubt in favor of the general's widow and children. Mrs. Sartoris will return to her husband's home in England in about ten days.

TRYING TO SAVE RIEL.—Another meeting in favor of Riel was held at Papineau market, Montreal, Saturday night, and was attended by about 4,000 persons. One of the speakers said that there seemed to be a conspiracy against Riel, as he had only been allowed eight days to prepare his defense. Resolutions condemning the trial as unconstitutional were passed.

The explosion occurred just after the Felton had left her dock on her trip to Wilmington, Del. As she was opposite pler 8, south wharves, the passengers and crew were startled by an explosion which shook the ooat from stem to sterm, and when the smoke cleared away it was found that the entire for-ward part of the vessel above the water line had been badly damaged and a number of passen-gers injured. Some of them severely. The pilot house and entire upper deck was lifted and fell to the lower deck. The bow presented a scene of complete wreck. Tugs proceeded at once to the injured vessel, and with the assistance of the police tug, Wm. S. Stokley, which was lying near by, at once proceeded to remove the injured. The ambu-lance of the Pennsylvania hospital soon arrived, and took most of the injured to that institution.

and took most of the injured to that institution. The injured, so far as known, are: John E. McDunn, aged nine years, living in Chester, severely injured about legs; Silas Reed, residing at 1620 Hancock street, badly shocked and contused; Bessie Bradley, residing at 239 Spruce street, ankle dislocated; Samuel Cooper, residing at 4400 Frankford road, injured about head and body: John Stephanson residing at head and body; John Stephenson, residing at 1225 Pavonia street, Camden, shocked by the concussion: George Cockayre, residing at 209 South Front street, thigh cut; and Geo. Ervin, injured about limbs and body. The steamer was, immediately after the removal of the pas-sengers, towed down the river, and it is said will be taken to Wilmington for repairs. She s owned by the Pennsylvania R. R. Co. The Felton is a large well-equipped boat. If she is not injured below the water line the damage will not be heavy. The cause of the explosion is as yet uncertain. The passengers and many of those who saw the explosion from the shore insist that gunpowder or some similar explosive was ignited on the forward deck, pier declare that they distinctly noticed the odor of gunpowder. There has been consider-able rivalry between the Felton and other boats running to Wilmington, and reports have gained ground that some malicious persons placed an explosive on the deck. This is a mere rumor, however, and the cause of the ex-plosion will not be known until further investigation is made.

NEARLY $2,000,000 LOST TO THE STATE.

How Texas has Suffered from the Negligence of its Land Board. GALVESTON, August 17 .- At the meeting of the state land board last Tuesday a resolution was passed whereby the board agreed to "Fully exonerate, acquit, release and hold harmless from all pains and penalties, suits, costs, pro-ceedings, damages and liabilities against the Galveston News for or on account of anything it may publish touching any member of the board in the management of the landed affairs of Texas." The News had intimated it possessed certain damaging information touching the manage-ment of state lands, which it feared to publish because of an exceedingly stringent libel law, which gagged the press of Texas. By rea-son of this law under a recent ad-verse decision of the supreme court of Texas, the proprietors of the News have just paid $10,000, hence their desire to be insured. In its issue of yesterday the News opened out on the land board by reviewing its work. The paper now makes the claim that the board, by its neglect and mismanagement has lost to the school fund of the state the sum of $1,750,000, which should have been collected under the law from the cettlemen during the past law, from the cattlemen during the past eighteen months. The News says that in February, 1884, an act was passed directing the land board to appoint grass commissioners, whose duties should be to ascertain by constant inspection the area of free grass belonging to the state, and being occupied by cattlemen without leases of any character. Under this law occupiers of such lands were compelled to pay occupation tax. Twenty million acres of free grass lands of this character have been constantly grazed upon since the passage of the law. Yet the land board only last week appointed and sent out the grass commissioners, upon whose re-ports the tax could only be collected. The law makes no provision for back taxes, hence the state has lost nearly $2,000,000, which has simply remained in the pockets of cattlemen. In ply remained in the pockets of cattlemen. In making these statements the News in one breath acquits the members of the land board of intentional wrong, but in the next breath it says: "This loss of $1,750,000 was not accidental, and not being accidental it is presumably the result of intelligent design." This creates a sensation. The board is composed of Gov. John Ireland, State Treasurer F. R. Lubbock, Land Commissioner W. C. Walsh, Controller W. J. Swain, and Attorney General John D. Templeton. This galaxy of names comprises the most distinguished politicians in Texas.

REFUSING ABSOLUTELY TO TALK ABOUT HIS CASE-NEW EVIDENCE.

hotel in St. Louis on the 5th of last April, arrived in that city Sunday morning from San Francisco in charge of officers. A crowd of from 2,000 to 3,000 people were at the depot, and there was a great scramble among them to get a view of the prisoner, but good order was preserved. Maxwell refused positively to talk to reporters about his case. Detective Tracy thinks that further developments will show Maxwell to be a week man mentally but that he Maxwell to be a week man mentally, but that he has got the one idea wedged into his mind that his safety depends upon his silence, and that he will startle nobody with a surprising or romantic defense. Tracy thinks he killed Preller for money; that the very few admissions he has made point in that direction; that his younge from St. Louis to missions he has made point in that direction; that his voyage from St. Louis to Auckland was a money-spending debauch, and not a well-planned escape from justice.

The body of Preller was exhumed Saturday to ascertain its condition and determine whether it would be worth while to summon witnesses to identify it when Maxwell is put on trial. The remains, which were embalmed before burial, were tound to be in an excellent fore burial, were found to be in an excellent state of preservation. The trial of Maxwell can-not be brought on until the October term of the criminal court. Charles Biegers, the trunkmaker, recognized Maxwell as the man to whom he sold the trunk in which Preller's body was found, and a porter at the Southern hotel recognized him as having been a guest at that hous in April last. An important point in the case has just leaked out. Much speculation had been indulged in by the authorities concerning the mutilation of the corpse and the manner in which it was dressed. The drawers which covered the lower within a foot of the ankles. The drawers were subjected to minute examination, and on the inside of the waistband was found the name of "Hugh M. Brooks," half written and half printed in that peculiar hand since so thoroughly identified as Maxweil's. The only time the name had been heard of before was at the San Francisco ticket office, under which cognomen Maxwell purchased his ticket to Auckland. It was also discovered written on the back of a leather match how among Maxwell's effects land. It was also discovered written on the back of a leather match-box among Maxwell's effects. The deduction from these facts is that Maxwell stripped the body and then started to dress it in a suit of his, Maxwell's, clothes. First he put the drawers on, but finding it hard work, quit, and placed the body in a trunk with the intention of shipping it to some point where it would be found and buried as Hugh M. Brooks. The rapid decomposition of the body alone prevented him from carrying out his plan. A communication from London some months ago said that Brooks was the real name of Maxwell. Why Brooks was the real name of Maxwell. Why he should desire to dress the body in a suit of his own underclothes, marked with his own name, is another puzzler in this puzzling case.

In response to this he admitted in a round-about way that such was the case and that at the right time this would be the defence he would enter. Upon his person hypodermic syringes and other medical instruments were found, and when asked if he had not used them on Preller, and medicine as well, he admitted that he had, and gave the reporters to understand that he had killed Preller by giving him an overdose of chloroform, "I had often dosed him before," he said, and I thought I knew his constitution well, but I may have been mistaken. Coming over on the Cephalonia I prescribed for him for cephalgia or headache. I've forgotten now what I prescribed, ache. I've forgotten now what I prescribed, but I have a copy of the prescription, however, and can show it when the time comes. I gave him plenty of medicine on the voyage." He said that he and Prelier had had a boisterous time together; that after a night of dissipation Prelier was sick and that he had at first administered hypodermic injections of morphia, They had not acted, and then the chloform was brought into play. It was only used to allay great suffering on the part of Prelier. When it had produced death Maxwell, it is supposed, became alarmed. He knew that he was a stranger in this country, that no excuse he could give could clear away the mystery sur-rounding his friend's death. This, of course, is the theory, but there is not a doubt but that INDIANAPOLIS, IND., August 17.—Oliver Carthe idea of murder occurred to him and the Larry him to the station-house for you." The officer said: "No, we don't wan't your help to carry him." Then they tussled, and Mr Sheethan choked his uncle. Then the officer got his nisted which was the officer got his quent it as to have earned the name of "The Bloody Field," by which it was known. The tragedy yesterday came near resembling that which resulted about a year ago in the death of Police Officer Fowler, who was shot by the colored man Langster with the policeman's own pistol. Yesterday Addison Coleman, a powerful black man, was shot and killed by Police Officer Dan'l I. Sheahan. The officer or the other white man avecant his uncle. lice Officer Dan'l J. Sheehan. The fatal shot was fired after a long and desperate struggle. Sheehan had, by direction of Lieut. Greer, donned his citizen's clothes for the purpose of more effectively hunting out gangs of men and others breaking the law and the Sabbath by gambling.

John W. Browner, the next witness gave an account of the affair, coinciding with that of the two preceding witnesses. The colored man, he said, claimed that he was in front of his own door, and that the officer therefore could not arrest him. The officer told him several times to go into the house, saying that if he did not he would "take him to the stationhouse in that wagon," referring to a wagon, near at hand. The colored man said "he would be d—d if he would go into the house. He would take ten

"Didn't you kick the officer in the side?"
asked the coroner.

"Kick! kick!" said the witness. "No, indeedy;
I went right straight home, after the officer told me to."

Dr. Tyler, upon being recalled, said that the point where the ball was found was five or six inches below the point of entrance. He thought it was evident the pistol was pointing downwards when it was fired.

FAILURE by Torpedo Experiments.— A telegram from Newport, R. I., August 16, says: The torpedo invented by Capt. Howell, U.S. navy, has been experimented with under the observation of officers of the torpedo station this week, to give facts regarding the working of the mechanism. To the chagrin of the inventor and observers, the torpedoes almost instantly disappeared as soon as they had touched water, going completely out of sight. Of course no report, save of their loss, can be made.
